Warsaw — Judgment Deferred

Few military men and fewer civilians can speak about Warsaw with any authority. The report that the Red army has begun the final phase of its assault on the Polish capital explains nothing. Either international politics, military strategy, or both, must be blamed for a situation which has become so puzzling that judgment on Warsaw must be deferred.

On the eve of what is now reported as the beginning of a major attack to drive the Germans out of Warsaw, British-controlled aircraft from the Mediterranean area, all the way across Europe, were delivering arms and ammunition to Polish patriots fighting inside the city, according to the Polish "government" in London. This hazardous expedition, on which some 250 airmen were reported lost, was carried out despite apparent lack of similar assistance from the Russian forces a few miles away.

It is understood, of course, that there is a sharp difference of opinion between Russians and some of the British about what constitutes a Polish patriot, but at this distance no one can be expected to understand why a single life should be sacrificed because of such misunderstandings. There will be a lot to explain about Warsaw when the story finally comes out.

Pacific Climax

It would be ironic if Americans missed the Pacific climax of World War II while watching its anti-climax in Europe.

In military strategy, the action which determines the outcome frequently misses the attention that some less important battle may draw because of special circumstances that give it color and dramatic flavor.

This conceivably could happen in the battle of the Philippines, now well under way, as daily communications of heavy naval and air action reveal. When the battle of the Philippines is over, the outcome of the war with Japan probably will be decided—not by armchair strategists, wishful thinkers, optimists, or pessimists, but by circumstances which will be evident to even the most obtuse Japanese military.

As an island group, the Philippines lie between Japan proper and its captured East Indian empire. In the other direction, the Philippines are the last barrier between United States naval power and a beachhead in southern China. If Japan can be cut off from its raw materials sources in the East Indies and flanked by a landing in China, its defeat then must become for its militarists merely a matter of time. The decision would be predetermined.

It is probably in recognition of this that the Japanese are speaking of a crisis when most Americans are still thinking of the Pacific war as being in a preliminary stage. Japan cannot lose the Philippines and survive. The United States must have them; nearly everything it has done in the South and Central Pacific has been preliminary in one sense or another to the recapture of the islands whose value the party in power so little appreciated that one of its first moves after 1933 was to prepare to give them their freedom; i. e., turn them over to the Japanese.

First Quarter Pole

To the surprise of tired-out cynics who said it couldn't happen, the presidential race is a horse race as it approaches the quarter pole.

Gov. Dewey has not come forth with the sensational getaway speed his partisans hoped for, but has come forth with something more important. He has hit a pace fast enough to put him in the running, without apparent exertion. He shows promise of finishing stronger than he started.

Abandoning the race track metaphor, this is the key to Gov. Dewey's present situation in his campaign: That the circumstances of the campaign itself, plus his own skill, have put the Roosevelt administration on the defensive. This is not a matter of opinion, but a matter of confession by administration apologists; they are all busy explaining to the public that this, that and the other thing "just ain't so."

Their defending has been punctuated weakly by a few inane slurs on Gov. Dewey's height, which is practically sure to win for him the moral support at least of all voters who are five feet eight inches tall, or under. The public is told that Mr. Roosevelt will do better than this when he takes the stump, and it is obvious he hardly could do worse.

As everybody now knows, public opinion polls in politics are chiefly useful for showing trends. It is a safe guess that Gov. Dewey will continue to accumulate strength as he continues his campaign, with such discounts as may be brought about by Mr. Roosevelt, himself, when he becomes more active. Certainly it is now as plain as Sidney Hillman, that Gov. Dewey is going to need vastly more attention from Mr. Roosevelt than was given to Alfred M. Landon and Wendell Wilkie. There is so much more to answer for now than there was in 1940 and 1936—and Gov. Dewey is a shrewd enough campaigner to make the most of his advantage.

The Legend of Joe

In the United States, in its cities, towns and at the crossroads, there is growing the legend of Joe. With a little luck, Joe may become in time as fabulous a figure in his way as Paul Bunyan.

It is accidental, but fortunate as far as the legend is concerned, that in his way, which is politics, Joe was not named Ivan, or Boris, or something pronounceable only by Russians. Perhaps it was not so accidental, at that, because at the top row of the Russian government only a few officials use given names; all the rest are known by initials. But here in America, where many strange things can happen and usually do happen, everybody knows Joe and the legend that goes with him.

According to the legend, Joe plays the toughest, tightest game of poker in the whole world. He holds the cards close to his vest, next to the buttons. When he has them he plays them, and when he doesn't he bluffs them, but you would never know. Joe's expression is always inscrutable. His game is to concede nothing.

He doesn't betray himself by even so little as the twitch of a whisker. When he talks, which is rarely, he doesn't say anything unless he wants to say something—then he says it in a few words of one syllable each. But no one ever makes the mistake, at least not in recent years, of thinking that because Joe doesn't talk he isn't thinking and planning. In the American idiom in which the American legend of Joe is phrased, he never gets caught off base. The crowd may boo him at the plate—and it has—and it may hope he will fall on his face in the field—and it has—but in American legends the fellow who never gets caught off base is always a hero in his own right. That explains the legend of Joe.

He is the statesman who never pulls a skull. Of course, he has pulled plenty of them in his time, but they aren't mentioned in the legend. Nor are any of the other things that Joe has pulled mentioned any more—in the legend. Joe is the guy who never gets caught off base, the fellow who knows what time it is, the realist who never draws to an inside straight, the Paul Bunyan of international affairs in the fourth decade of the 20th century. All Russians should appreciate him for what he is, whatever else he isn't. Legendary figures are rare.

The Stars Say

For Sunday, September 17

SUNDAY'S horoscope turns toward some peculiar and revolutionary moves and while accompanied by adverse situations, in the long run, through good judgment and sustained application to duties, responsibilities and obligation lasting benefits may be expected. This might have relation to group, fraternal or community activities. But in all show unnecessary changes and safeguard the health and that of the family. Be vigilant against deception.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of peculiar upsets or anxieties affecting the standing in community or group affiliations. Work for fulfillment of all obligations and responsibilities, but keep alert to duplicity and strange entanglements. Be wary with affectional, domestic and social ties, and safeguard the physical condition of self and family.

A child born on this day may have progressive ideas in promoting public relations or community well being, although it will be shy and distant.

For Monday, September 18

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a lively and enjoyable state of affairs in the realm of romance, parties, celebrations and domestic or social functions. Things should move at a lively pace, despite the fact that some impediments or frustrating circumstances might arise. With tenacity and tact such obstructions may be eliminated. Firmness and strategem are recommended.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of celebrations and festivities marking romantic, social or domestic adventures of significance. However there may be delays, obstacles and impediments to be removed by determination, diligence and good will disposing of disagreements and limitations in both business and private relations. Compromise and tact may assist.

A child born on this day may have many talents and skills, in unusual lines, although its tendency may be toward the arts and sciences. Its life may be romantic and adventurous, with serious objectives.

The Frying of Food Discussed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
PEOPLE TOSS phrases such as, "Fried foods are hard to digest"—around with great nonchalance considering that human digestion is a far more important problem.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

than post-war reconstruction. But it is difficult to pin up high grade scientists down to just what is meant by "hard to digest."

The stomach and the pancreas are pretty hard-boiled old parties. They can digest a bone today. It may take them a little more time to digest some things than others, as shown by the studies of Boggers and Ivy, so your high grade scientist, who is always analyzing would like to modify the phrase "hard to digest" to "such and such foods take longer to digest than others."

On the ancient debate as to whether fried foods are less digestible than foods cooked in other ways, Dr. Frank Howard Richardson, of Brooklyn, writes:

Discussion of Fried Foods
"Most doctors, if asked whether fried foods are harmful for children and should therefore be forbidden, would unhesitatingly reply, 'Yes.' Further, they would feel confident that they were on sound scientific ground in making this assertion. Yet doctors have fried foods at their own family tables. Even though they may specify broiling for patients' diets, they know that in most homes it is the frying pan and not the broiling flame that will be employed for cooking them."

"It has been my custom to feed fried foods to children, ever since I began practice. But I believe that any conviction is open to question and should be discarded if disproved. Especially with our wartime shortages it is desirable to be sure of the soundness of our dietary beliefs."

"There seems to be one published piece of experimental research on the subject of fried foods and their effects upon digestion (Boggers and Ivy 1). The following are excerpts from their work."

"We have devised experiments to prove whether fried foods are more or less easily digested than other foods. Potatoes were chosen because of their universal use, low fat content, simple preparation, and ease of uniform preparation."

"They summarize their laboratory experiments thus: 'The starch of the pan-fried is more easily digested than that of the French fried, more easily than that of the broiled potato.'"

• SO THEY SAY

No business, not even the business of the great Government of the United States, can long pursue a continued policy of spending more than it collects.

—Rep. Robert L. Doughton (D) of North Carolina, chairman Ways and Means Committee.

There is no basic distinction between the war with Germany and the war with Japan.

—British Home Secretary Herbert Morrison.

We are getting some of the finest pilots in the world now. They are far superior to the German pilots, who are deteriorating rapidly.

—Col. Don J. M. Blakeslee, Eagle Group commander back from England.

Modern technology with all its devices for saving labor and conquering space and time can't overcome the limits set to man's capacity for enjoyment.

—Dr. Maximilian Beck of Yale U.

We are winning the war but the needs of our soldiers, sailors and marines are as great as ever. To supply the demands for the weapons and materials of war calls for continued production so that the battles may end and lives be spared.

—President Roosevelt.

THE REST OF MY LIFE WITH YOU

by Faith Baldwin

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

"It seems," said Matthew, a day or so later, "that I have married a rich woman."

"Mind?"

"Why should I? Throw it away, burn it up, buy diamonds and emeralds and forty-six mink coats and eight imported cars. Also there are taxes, my angel. But I can always support you, you know." He added, a little too carelessly, "What are your mother's plans? Or hasn't she decided?"

"I asked her to live with us," said Judith. "Matthew, I know you didn't use the idea. But I had to. . . I couldn't bear to think of her alone. No matter what happened."

"How do you mean, what happened?"

"Between us."

"Why in the world would you?" he began, half impatiently.

"I wasn't worried," cut in Judith. "I knew it would have to work out. Then your mother suggested that Mother live with her and—"

"But that's a wonderful idea," cried Matthew. "They're old friends, they'd be congenial."

Judith interrupted. "It's a crazy idea! Naturally they're old friends and fond of each other. But they have absolutely nothing in common except us. And besides, your mother's life has been disrupted too often."

"Disrupted?" he repeated, his dark brows drawn.

"Yes. For your sake," said Judith, "living just for you. After you married Irene she had time to rearrange things for herself, but not for long."

"He interrupted her again. 'That's a curious way to speak of our relationship—I mean as something disrupting.'"

"Well," Judith demanded, "hasn't it been? So, even if Mother thought she might like to live with your mother, I wouldn't let her. It isn't fair to Mary, no matter what you think."

"Then, what is she to do?" he demanded.

"She's going back to California," answered Judith. "She wouldn't bear of living with us. We're a sort of second cousin out there where she likes very much, a widow, about Mother's age. They like the same things. She's written, asking Cousin Marion to live with her. They'll travel a little. And there's a school for underprivileged children in which Aunt Ella was interested. Mother wants to take that over."

Matthew found himself sighing with relief. Lighting his pipe, he glanced at Judith's sober face and asked, "You're not happy about it?"

"No, I'm not. But that's the way Mother seems to want it. I'll miss her dreadfully."

"He said, 'You have me, Judy.'"

Her face became luminous. She slipped from her chair and came to sit on a big hassock at his feet. Judith leaned her head against his knees, saying, "Yes, I have you, darling."

After Eva Lambert left for the Coast, after the first excitement of settling down in a new apartment, was over, the life of the young Dr. Norman and his bride ran on an almost even keel. There were some upsets, of course. For instance, Judith insisted that Nellie return to Mary. "We don't need her," she told Matthew, "and Mary's more comfortable with her and Kate. She expects to entertain more, she told me so. And this new couple I've found will be ideal, I hope."

Matthew was annoyed. He was used to Nellie. She knew just how he liked things, he said stubbornly, but Judith retorted that the strange servants could be instructed in his likes and dislikes—which were extremely definite.

Besides, the butler could double in brass as a valet. "I," said Judith with dignity, "have no intention of looking after your clothes. If I didn't know better, I would think you slept in them, Matthew."

The couple were Scandinavian, and efficient. Olga cooked to perfection, Nils served with capability. Matthew grumbling, soon became accustomed to them. Judith had her own car and chauffeur who was also available for Matthew when necessary.

They did no formal entertaining for Judith was in mourning. Matthew was restive about that. Mourning was absurd, he remarked.

a relic of barbarism. But Judith said quietly that she owed as much to Aunt Ella. Moreover, it would offend and hurt Eva if she learned that her daughter, Ella's niece, was galloping all over the place, night-climbing and going to parties.

"Besides," she added with the faint smile which had not so far failed to placate him, "I like being alone with you."

Judith learned soon enough that Matthew did not like being alone as much as she did. It was enough for him to know that he could come home to her or that after guests had left the apartment and the door shut they would be together again. On the evenings when no one was there or they were not going out to Mary's or to close friends, he soon became restless, twirled the dials of the radio, causing abortive blasts of sound. Now he loathed being read aloud to and Judith, who liked to read aloud, and had done so for years to Aunt Ella, relinquished her little dream of sitting by a fireside reading to him from some book which she had enjoyed so much she wanted to share it with him. Sometimes he was busy with the preparation of a paper or the reading of some professional book, and upon those occasions retreated to the little study, off the living room, which she and Mary had furnished for him with loving care. A place in which he could be by himself, in which he could have all the comfortable untidiness he wanted, which he might fill with pipe smoke and sometimes, when he disagreed with an article or a book or when his own writing did not go so well, hearty and belligerent curses. Judith liked those evenings. She could sit in the beautifully proportioned living room and read, or write letters at her old exquisitely polished desk, or lie on the couch by the fire if the winter night was crisp and think of how happy she was and know that at intervals Matthew would erupt from the study, his dark hair on end and inkstains on his hands, to demand that he be given a whisky and soda instantly or merely that she come and kiss him.

There were many nights when he was called out, and somehow she liked that the best of all, waiting for him in the quiet bedroom, sometimes sitting up and reading, in one of her innumerable trousseaus bed jackets, sometimes falling asleep and waking instantly to his step.

She had no need of other people, except perhaps Mary who, now that her own mother was three thousand miles away, was nearer to her than ever before. But she forced herself to go out, to keep in circulation to some extent, if quietly enough, seeing young women of her own age, paying duty calls on Aunt Ella's friends, hunting up a child adoption charity in which she became interested shortly after her marriage, and doing volunteer work at its offices.

Judith also saw a good deal of Hilda Morley and Barbara Taylor. She did not especially like—or dislike—Hilda, who seemed to her rather shallow, but she did like Barbara, although she found her difficult to know, a little repressed.

You admired Barbara and you trusted her but you could not feel close to her. But because of Matthew's association with Sam and Bill, she felt that it was incumbent upon her to be friendly with their wives. And they often dined together.

She liked Elizabeth, Matthew's office nurse, better than either of the two doctors' young wives. One reason perhaps was that Elizabeth, like herself, was so rationally happy. She asked her and Peter to dine and the four of them played an animated game of contract and had an amusing evening. She was sorry to see them go out into a winter snowstorm.

It was shortly after the beginning of the New Year, Christmas had been more fun than anything she could remember in a long time. Shopping for Matthew had been a delight. She said to Mary, "He's a big baby," watching him open his packages.

He had given her a compact which she cherished. And he hadn't been able to wait until Christmas to give it to her.

Now with the New Year coming in, Judith closing the door on Elizabeth and Peter said happily, "They're such nice people."

Household Hints
Runover heels pull shoes out of shape and cause them to wear out faster.
When using a washboard rub clothes gently, using a soft brush on soiled spots.
Wool dresses or lightweight coats can be made into girl's jumpers or little boys' pants.
Cotton socks should be bought one inch longer than the length of the foot to allow for shrinkage.
Never scrub a wood floor that has a fine finish with water.
When washing white cotton fabrics, soak to loosen dirt.

Household Hints

Runover heels pull shoes out of shape and cause them to wear out faster.

When using a washboard rub clothes gently, using a soft brush on soiled spots.

Wool dresses or lightweight coats can be made into girl's jumpers or little boys' pants.

Cotton socks should be bought one inch longer than the length of the foot to allow for shrinkage.

Never scrub a wood floor that has a fine finish with water.

When washing white cotton fabrics, soak to loosen dirt.

How much does it cost to move a pin?

On a war map of the South Pacific, the little red-white-and-blue pins march steadily westward.

Tarawa... Makin... the Marshalls... Saipan... and each move brings the pins closer to Tokyo.

Each move is mighty expensive business. The cost is high in dollars... the cost is high in men.

To plant the Stars and Stripes on Saipan cost the lives of more than 2000 American boys... plus some 12,000 wounded and missing.

Naturally, these losses cannot be summed up in dollars and cents... there is not enough money in the world to bring back 2000 dead Americans.

But in guns, ammunition, and other equipment, it is estimated that Saipan cost us many millions of dollars. Each of the many steppingstones remaining between our forces and Tokyo may cost as much or more.

Where is the money coming from?

It's coming from you, and millions of Americans like you... from the taxes you pay, and from the War Bonds you buy.

And while it may pinch a little, buying those Bonds is the smartest thing you ever did.

For the dollars you put in Bonds not only help win the war. They come back to you later—and bring more dollars with them.

In this postwar world we're going to build, they'll be the most valuable dollars anybody ever owned.

Get all you can of them—now!

Salem Quakers Topple Sebring, 24-2, In Opener At Stadium

Potent First String, Wealth Of Reserves Revealed Against Weak But Plucky Trojans

Salem High school's Quaker football squad—packed with an explosive offensive and manned by more players than ever before seen on a Salem varsity bench—scored a one-sided victory over the weak, but plucky Sebring High Trojans last night, 24-2, before nearly 4,000 "first night" fans at Reilly stadium.

Although the Quakers starting eleven—definitely a powerhouse—didn't see more than a full quarter's play in the contest, Coach Ben Barrett exhibited a formidable grid machine for his 1944 debut.

Using 40 men—nearly four full teams—Barrett released a lot of promising youth onto the greenward and game local fans plenty of bright hope for the balance of this season and other seasons to come. The second squad—though not as strong offensively—showed up well on defense and coupled with the first, third and fourth groups held the Trojans without a yard's gain through the line.

As a matter of fact, the Quakers rolled up 261 yards, net, from rushing and the Trojans netted a loss of 27 yards in the entire four quarters. Smothering nearly all attempts through and around the Quaker line, the 40 Quaker lads had Sebring under control all the way.

It was a gala night but for one gloomy side of the Salem picture, Norm Smith, promising senior halfback on the second team, was hit hard by two Trojans mid-way in the second period and suffered a fractured left ankle. The plucky back, who performed with brilliancy on defense and offense, will be lost to Barrett's squad for the remainder of the season. The game was his first, having come out for football for the first time this fall.

Outstanding in the Salem first string were a pair of scintillating halfbacks—Francis Lanney and Ray Kelly. Lanney not only headed the Salem attack and scored two of the four touchdowns, one on a 40 yard run, but performed with reliable ability on defense.

Though Kelly didn't tally any six-pointers, he chewed off some excellent end sweeps, off tackle grunts and power drives, one of his most promising features is his hard working, razor sharp defensive game. The Quaker line looked good, but Barrett is still looking for a more potent pair of ends on defense. Walter Brian, pass snagging vet-erish, was used but sparingly last night and the other lads showed a need for definite improvement. Don Chappell looms as the best prospect, although Tom Bush, starter, was unable to perform up to par because of an injured knee.

The initial Salem score came early in the game. After three offensive plays by the Quakers, Francis Lanney was found standing up behind the Trojan goal. Lanney got there by sweeping his own right end, evading numerous tacklers, with a bit of good blocking to help him progress from the Sebring 40 yard marker to the goal line.

The second tally, a few plays later, took Salem a few more offensive motions, but not much more trouble. Taking over on the Sebring 48, the score-bound Quakers marched straight down the field in right plays before Lanney smashed right tackle for the necessary one foot and six points. He tried to kick both conversions, missed the first, made the second but it didn't count. An offside penalty made Salem try again and a pass failed to do the trick.

Following the second score, Barrett inserted his second team. After getting themselves into some trouble, with holding penalties, which moved them down to the Salem one yard line, Norm Smith kicked out 30 yards ahead.

A few minutes later, with Sebring in possession of the ball on their own 20, Ed Gills tried a pass over right end. Instead of clicking like expected the pass was grabbed off by Tom Paparedis, 172 pound fullback, who calmly ran 25 yards and over the Trojan danger marker for the third tally. He tried the conversion and found Bob Sharpnack Sebring tackle, in front of him, the ball and the extra point. It was 18-0.

As the second half started Barrett slipped his first string back in for a brief workout. They received the Sebring kickoff on the Salem 44 and began a concerted drive to pay dirt. Moving 35 yards down the field in 15 plays, another score was on the Quaker ledger. Charlie Franks, who showed plenty of drive in his powerhouse legs, took the puck over from the three yard line. Then, behind the drive and setting up

POTTERS CHALK UP VICTORY NO. 1 AS 1944 SEASON OPENS

Down Strong Steubenville Central Squad, 13-0, In Home Game

EAST LIVERPOOL, Sept. 15.—Using the talents of Alonzo Spencer, Negro substitute left halfback, to good advantage, the East Liverpool Pottery defeated a strong Steubenville Catholic Central gridiron machine, 13-0, at Patterson field here last night.

Spencer, who replaced Bob Ward at halfback in the first period, tallied both Liverpool touchdowns and maneuvered most of the running. Rudy Trovovich, 230 pound tackle, kicked the extra point to make the total.

The Pottery tallied a single score in the first period when Spencer dashed 17 yards to the Central 11 yard marker to set up the score. Chuck Means ran to the 11 on the next play and off-tackle tries by Pack and Means advanced the oval to the one yard line. From there Spencer went over. Trovovich's kick was low.

An interception by Chuck Means on the Central of Tommy Dugan's lateral set the stage for the second tally in the second period. With the ball on the Central 14, Spencer took a lateral from Bob McGraw and galloped over standing up. The kick was perfect and it was 13-0.

The Pottery had a definite yardage advantage. Gaining 129 yards from rushing, they out-did their rivals, who got just 56 through the line. East Liverpool had 11 first downs and Steubenville 8.

Petter offense, still being determined by Coach Gerald Cappuzzetti, featured a smooth-working T formation, springing through the slow Ceramic line.

SPORT CHATTER

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Looks as if Bo McMillin might have to wipe those tears away at last.... Bob (Hunchy) Hornschoymer, Box star back last year, may be back at Indiana U. for another season.... Hunchy has been at Baltimore, Md., awaiting the opening of the Naval Preparatory school for Annapolis, but indications now are that he'll return to college until time to take the academy exams next April.... The minor leagues can't do much about that conflict with the majors in the winter meeting dates because the National association agreement specifies Wednesday of the first week in December.

EAST PALESTINE NIPS LEETONIA'S POWER IN OPENER

Bulldogs Stage Last Minute Scoring Spree to Tie Veterans, 19-19

Proving that a football game—like any other contest—is not over until the final minute, an inspired fighting group of East Palestine Bulldogs, and underdogs at that, came from way behind last night to tie the veteran crew of Leetonia coached by J. L. McBride, 19-19, in a hair raising opener under the lights at East Palestine.

Scoring the final six points in the last minute of play, East Palestine showed the "old comeback" spirit and handed Leetonia what was at least a moral setback. Leetonia was rated the edge over the green Bulldogs, coached by John Reid for the first season.

Turn On Heat
Facing a crew of 16 veterans—11 "old timer" starters—the Bulldogs started things off big in the first period, scoring six points to take the lead. Things cooled off on the Bulldog side of the ledger for a period or two, as Leetonia, sparked by the passing of Ed Duce and the receiving of Pat Mancuso, elusive left end, scored twice in the second frame and against in the third.

With the score 19-6, Palestine began working the hard way, inch by inch, on power plays to tally twice in the final frame. Herb Gery, 260 pound fullback, did most of the totting and tallied a pair of the Bulldog scores. Mancuso scored twice for Leetonia.

Ravenna's Ravens To Be Well Scouted

Ravenna's Ravens—next opponents for the Salem High Quakers—will be well scouted when they open their 1944 season against Rocky River in Ravenna this afternoon.

Coaches Ben Barrett and Joe Kelley of Salem will be hard at work at the game to make sure a Ravenna surprise like the one that occurred here last year doesn't happen again. Last season the Quakers barely nosed out the Ravens, 14-13, after spending a full first half trying to fathom the shifty Ravenna T formations.

However, things will be fairly even since Coach Harry Gilcrest of Ravenna spent the evening last night watching Salem and Sebring battle at Reilly stadium.

Goshen High Gridders Bumped 13-0 By Poland

Poland's football team, taking advantage of the last seconds in the half and the fourth quarter, scored once on a plunge and again on a 25-yard pass to overcome Goshen High, 13-0, at Damascus yesterday afternoon.

The first tally, made from the four-yard line with seconds to go in the first half, went over just before the period ended. The extra point was good through the uprights.

With a scoreless third quarter and no score in most of the fourth, Poland found itself on the Goshen 25 and time left for one play. A forward pass did the trick and the score was 13-0. The kick was wide.

Detroit Slips Into Tie As Browns Win 5-1 Over White Sox; Boston Loses To Nats

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer
Detroit had muffed a chance to take control of the American league pennant race and sat idly by today as the St. Louis Browns got their chance to nip at the heels of the front-running Yankees.

While Elmer Truitt was losing his second straight and the Tigers were splitting a doubleheader with Cleveland, the Browns thumped Chicago to pull into a second place tie with the Bengals. They were one-half game back of Joe McCarthy's men who end a five day "vacation" by entertaining Philadelphia today.

Truitt's 12-inning loss to Cleveland's Steve Gronck, 4-3, set tongues wagging with the "I told you so's," harping on the season-long theme of overwork but the "tired" Mr. Right of the Detroit staff could point to 24 victories and 313 innings on the hill as proof of his consistent effectiveness with only two weeks to go. Myril Hoag's doubt, scoring Gronck in the 12th, downed Truitt.

One Half Good
Hal Newhouse earned the Tigers a split by turning back the Indians with eight hits and striking out nine for a 9-1 "Vincever."

Denny Galehouse hurled the Browns to a 5-1 decision over the Chicago White Sox with the help of Vern Stephens' 18th homer.

Boston dropped 3½ games the pace in a walloping by place Washington, 5-2.

St. Louis split a pair with Chicago, losing 2-1 but bouncing back 3-2 as Ted Wilks earned his 16th victory. New York finished a "suspended" game for an 8-3 edge over the Phillies but bowed to Ken Rulerberger in the regular scheduled tilt, 7-3. A Brooklyn at Boston game was postponed because the players were stranded in Connecticut due to the hurricane.

CLIPPERS SEEKING WIN OVER LISBON IN OPENER TODAY
Game Looming as Hard. Even Battle Between County Foes

An even, bitterly contested Tri-County league game involving two Columbiana county foes will be staged at the Lisbon fairgrounds at 3 p. m. today when the Blue Devils try their wares against a hopeful Columbiana Clipper aggregation in the season's opener for both squads.

With both teams performing under new members for the first time, tactics and plays are still an undetermined question.

John Cabas, former Wellsville and Chester mentor, has taken over the Clipper assignment and Robert Rutter is now in full charge of the Blue Devils.

Cabas has nine returning lettermen and a likely looking machine ready for action. Included in the starting group will be the two Harries, Hollinger and Case at ends, Carl Sheets and Tom Stenbrook, both newcomers, at tackles, Frank Grochett and Glen Engle in the guard posts and Veteran Frankie Grimes in the pivot job.

The backfield for the Clippers includes Tri-County Halfback Bill Newell with Don "Chester" Evans in the other half and either Keith Laughlin or Don Kurtz at quarterback. Bob Hum and Bob Orr are batting away for the starting fullback job.

Lisbon, with eight lettermen, stacks up at about 1:3 same power as their initial opponents. Alon Weber is the only veteran back Rutter has to work with this year, but seven linemen—all letter winners—will be among the starting group.

Weak in the reserve department, Rutter will be at a slight disadvantage should he need replacements. Cabas has a 23 man squad while Lisbon's total is just 21.

• THE THEATER

With the Bing Crosby hit "Going My Way" showing through Wednesday at the State, only one other picture is booked for the week. "Gypsy Wildcat", starring Maria Montez, Jon Hall and Peter Coe in a technicolor story of adventure and romance.

At the Grand Sunday and Monday will be two features: "Little Secret", a Henry Aldrich story with Jimmy Lydon, Charles Smith and John Lital; and "Dangerous Journey" based on films taken by Armand Denis and Leila Roosevelt with narration by Conrad Nagel. The Grand's features Tuesday and Wednesday are: "Pack Up Your Troubles", a Laurel and Hardy comedy, and a re-showing of "Made for Each Other", starring the late Carole Lombard and James Stewart.

SWITCHES BRANCHES. VARIES FRUIT CROP

(By United Press)
RED WING, Minn. — Alfred Swanson, a city mail carrier, produces 46 kinds of apples on 18 trees, 14 types of plums on six plum trees and 16 varieties of grapes on vines that line the fences at the sides and rear of his backyard garden.

Swanson achieves these apparent horticultural miracles by grafting on to his trees branches he obtains from parent trees at the state breeding farm, which is constantly experimenting with new varieties. In two years after the graft, a branch is easily bearing a new fruit next to a branch with apples or plums of a different variety.

Swanson is one of the most important exhibitors at the Minnesota state fair annually and his unorthodox fruit production is good for plenty of prizes. Also plenty of cash. Last year, he sold 175 bushels of apples from his multi-branched backyard orchard, after picking what he needed for the fair and his own use, for $3 to $2.50 a bushel, taking in more than $500.

He is a former president of the Minnesota Horticultural society.

Bogus Coupon Refund Now Due Gas Dealers

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, Sept. 16.—Gasoline dealers will give more fuel to sell after Oct. 1 under an Office of Price Administration plan permitting operators to recover gasoline lost through acceptance of counterfeit ration coupons prior to April 1, 1944, an OPA official disclosed last night.

James C. Rogers, deputy OPA director, confirmed reports that after Oct. 1 dealers may recover gasoline deducted to their accounts prior to April 1, 1944 or the date of their first notice of the debiting plan, whichever is earlier. He explained the original system, which included debits to equal the amount of illegal coupon gasoline turned in, was deemed "too harsh on the small dealer."

Shortly after gasoline rationing started the OPA began charging dealers for counterfeit coupons they turned in, Rogers stated.

He indicated the new plan would permit the OPA to "alleviate the plight of the honest and conscientious operator," while at the same time continuing to prosecute flagrant and obvious violators.

mand. For some reason he has lost the glamour he once had as the royal chieftain commando. It seems quite likely that the Allied Italian campaign, which bore certain earmarks of improvisation as compared with other operations within the long-term Allied plan, interfered with delivery of the strength originally intended for him. He could look better by the time the war is narrowed to China and Japan.

But right now, with all due credit to the achievements of others and the spectacular job MacArthur is yet to do, the rising figure in the Pacific is that of Nimitz. When all the allied forces have been gathered for the final blow at Nippon the situation may require a general.

eral. But until them, or for any possible direct attack against Japan except from China, Adm. Nimitz, who in effect already commands a great land, sea and air army, would seem to be headed for an ever-increasing role.

Laundryman Succumbs

EAST LIVERPOOL, Sept. 16.—Enoch N. Jones, 73, secretary of the Enterprise Laundry Co., which quit business two months ago because the OPA would not sanction a price increase to permit payment of higher wages to employees, died today.

A resident here 54 years, he was in the laundry business nearly a half century. His wife, a son and three daughters survive.

In 1943, crop failures in the United States resulted in a shortage of broom straw.
